

Sex Work Stories

Sex workers past and present - will you join us in sharing your stories?

I am an old school writer and former sex worker with a published story. I am volunteering with Peers to help others share their stories and to broaden voices speaking about sex work.

Meeting in person with you, I will listen to your story recording your words with paper and pen - old school - yes - that's how I roll! The rough notes will be returned to you or destroyed. The final version of your story will then get edited and published on the Peers' website blog. Note that stories will generally be brief, 500-750 words, and we hope to publish one story a month.

By sharing stories, we share our experiences and educate the world about the challenges and diversity of sex work, as well as the impact of the sex work laws and particularly the sex work laws introduced through C-36.
